Take a look at the Fort Concho recycled playground and you will instantly understand its name. Looking like a tall fun ride from a carnival, this unique playground encourages very active play and offers a lot of unique features. There are two veer slides and a single wave slide, a tall rockwall climber is more challenging than usual, and the zipper climb bar is great for kids aged 5-12. There is a rock play feature, a pipe wall, and two covered towers with gabled roofs. The ADA transfer station provides inclusive access and there is even a cozy bench tucked beneath one of the platforms to encourage socialization or simple daydreaming. Built from long lasting and durable materials, it has a use zone of 44'x43' and is capable of hosting from 27-31 kids in the recommended ages. The recycled posts on this playground come with a lifetime warranty while many of the other parts and components feature up to 15 years of coverage. You can choose your custom colors too.
