The Angeles Neptune Table offers affordability and quality in one convenient play table, which makes a great way for children to feel around the water and sand the Angeles Neptune Table contains. Each basin of the Angeles Neptune Table features a drain, as well as embedded, textured fish, crabs, and starfish. Additionally, a waterfall separates the two basins, and allows kids to observe the effects of water on sand. Sand and water play tables are excellent for providing the proper support environment in terms of developmental growth for children. Indeed, child development psychologists and other professionals often recommend sensory play over other types of play, as learning with non-hearing, non-sight senses increases their overall capacity for cognitive development. The Angeles Neptune Table effectively facilitates both indoor and outdoor learning activities, allowing children a variety of potential environments in which to use the table.
