Children between the ages of 6 to 23 months are just beginning their playground journey, and as such, they require play equipment that's suited to their needs. As visually appealing as tall, expansive play structures may be, they still aren't equipped to accommodate the smallest of children. Mount Pleasant is a play structure that does just that. Along with providing a bevy of toddler-minded amenities, Mount Pleasant also features a shade that covers the perimeter of the structure, allowing kids to play, or rest, underneath it. Beneath the shade, kids will find the Single Drum and Bongos, which can be used to create lively, percussive music, as well as the Straight Slide, which provides a short yet thrilling descent to the ground. There's a surfeit of ways for young ones to get active with Mount Pleasant.
